The NAB are a bunch of cry babies, something that is worth while and needed, and they don't have anything to do with, so they want to STOP it. XM radio is a threat to regular radio, but that is not XM's fault. The air waves are free, and so the NAB shouldn't have any say so what is there, regardless if they are the ones putting it out or not. They are afraid of compatition. XM radio is the greatest thing to come along in many of years. For people who spend many hours in a car either for pleasure or business, it sure beats conventional radio. Both Picering and Green will line their pockets with such a program as what the NAB wants to do.
